

Guidelines to Authors

The magazine welcomes articles in the form of opinions, case studies, traditional knowledge, and field experiences related to soil health and land management. Contributions may also include new knowledge in soil health management, the use of various nutrient inputs, agronomic aspects of soil management, and conservation of land resources.

Authors are requested to follow the guidelines given below while submitting their articles:

-  Article should be concise, with a length of 1000 -1500 words, and should include one or two good quality photographs relevant to the topic.
-  Authors must ensure originality of the content. Articles with plagiarism $\geq 10\%$ will not be considered for publication.
-  The number of references should not exceed 10. Authors are advised to follow the citation style used in previous issues of the magazine.
-  Articles should be sent by email to editorharitdhara@gmail.com