Harit Dhara, an E-Magazine, is a new initiative of ICAR-Indian Institute of Soil Science, Bhopal. The magazine gives an opportunity to the Scientists in National Agricultural Research System to contribute the latest developments in soil science towards achieving a sustainable good soil health leading to healthy green vegetation on earth. Besides, the E-Magazine aims at covering the latest news in soil science from India and abroad, opinions, and guidance of green technologies. In future, it shall also start a blog where users would be able to comment on published articles and express their opinions. In line with the objectives of the United Nation's International Decade of Soil (2010-2020), our goal is to quickly reach to our esteemed readers in the hinterland of the country and also abroad and abreast those with the latest in soil management. I congratulate the team for taking this good initiative and wish them all the success in making this E-Magazine a source of invaluable factual information of our most important precious natural resource: SOIL.
